- 25X11. [ ] the Chinese Communists made Fort Bayard (N 21-11, E 110-24), a 25X1 naval base. The Communists employed about 2,000 men in building wharves and 25X1 warehouses near Fort Bayard. The work was supervised by a Soviet engineer named Kan-chi-no-fu (2616/1015/6179/1133), who lived in Chinghuachiutien (0079/5478/6794/1648), Fort Bayard.
2. [ ] the Chinese Communists were building piers in 25X1 Lungmen (N 21- , E 108- ). Two small piers were completed; each could accommodate one vessel of 1,000 tons or two vessels of 600 tons each. A larger pier was being constructed. In addition to these piers, the Communists built 23 warehouses; five for the use of the engineer department and harbor bureau, and the others for military use. The Communists were also dredging the harbor with the dredger KWANG TUNG.
3. [ ] the harbor at Peihai (N 21-24, E 109-05) was being repaired.
25X1 Two gunboats, six patrol boats, and eight armed motor junks were anchored in the harbor.
- 25X1 [ ]
25X1 4. [ ] four Communist mine units were attached to the Canton River Flotilla, which was under the command of CHEN Ou (7201/2962). P'ANG Fu-hai (7894/4395/3189)

commanded one unit based at Whampoa, SU Ting-kuang (5685/1353/0342) commanded a unit at Swatow, LIU T'ien-feng (0491/1131/7685) commanded a unit at Fort Bayard, and CH'EN Chien (7115/7002) commanded a unit at Hsinhui (N 22-34, E 113-06).

25X1 5. [ ] there were 40 power vessels, formerly of the Chinese Nationalist navy and built in Japan, armed with machine guns, patrolling the West River delta in the Hsinhui and T'aishan (N 22-15, E 112-48) areas.

25X1 8. [ ] a battalion of the 3 Artillery Division, 15 Army Group, with 520 men, was in the Wailingting (N 22-06, E 114-02)-Tankan (N 22-02, E 114-16) area, with headquarters on Wailingting.

25X1 9. [ ] the Central and South Navy Headquarters established a construction company at Yulin (N 18-13, E 109-34) to consolidate the construction program and expand the training base on Hainan Island. The program included the selection of a site near Yulin for a naval training school, completion of dredging work in Yulin harbor, construction of the Yulin breakwater, establishment of navy patrols for southern Hainan and fulfillment of the building requirements of the naval base.

25X1 11. [ ] all boats at Wuchou were required to register with the military commission and the marine police. Boats entering or leaving the Wuchou area were required to clear with the military commission, the marine police, the inspection authorities, and customs. The hiring and firing of personnel had to be reported to the authorities.
